
kotak

HOW BANKING BRANDS ARE SHOWING UP WITH GEN Z

	SLICE	PAYTM	HDFC BANK
CONTENT STYLE	Meme, humour & internet culture	Relatable POVs & everyday humour	Product, awareness & topical-led
CONTENT TYPE	Cat Content	Creator ecosystem	Vigil Aunty / Vigil Army
PRODUCT	Features woven into entertainment	Features shown through everyday use cases	Products communicated through relevant lifestyle moments

GEN Z SPENDING BEHAVIOUR

GEN Z's MONEY PHILOSOPHY

INVESTING

- Liquidity > lock-ins
- Faster wealth creation
- Stocks, SIPs, crypto & digital assets

SPENDING

Money goes towards experiences, identity & influence

72% of Indian Gen Z look to creators for shopping inspiration

Gen Z projected to have $1.3T consumption power in India by 2030

27% of India's population

MILLENNIALS SPEND FOR STABILITY.
GEN Z SPEND FOR FREEDOM.

Sources: IBEF 2026 data, via Frontiers in Human Dynamics| Gen Z Investment Trends report | Redseer Strategy Consultants - "Gen Z: Defining Trends, Influencing Spends"

GEN Z THINKS ABOUT MONEY ALL THE TIME.

They just don't talk about it like banks do.

Concerts, vacations, dating, skincare, side hustles, sneakers, gaming. The undercurrent in every one of them is money.

Source: Mint, Gen Z spending habits

Skips ~~₹750~~ cocktail

Funds ₹8,000 Olivia Dean ticket

kotak

ON THE SURFACE IT LOOKS RECKLESS.
IT'S RUTHLESSLY PRIORITISED.

An older generation would tell them to skip the concert too. That's the difference.

01
Experiences first

Curated moments are prioritised over everything else.

02
Convenience is currency

Quick commerce and credit are defaults, not exceptions.

03
Spending turns invisible

Frictionless payments hide the size of the decision.

SO HOW DOES THIS FILTER ONTO OUR SOCIALS?

GEN Z DOES IT FOR THE PLOT

It’s their storyline and everyone else is an NPC.

And if they have to spend an extra 2k or 20k to make their plot more interesting, they will do it.

We become the infrastructure that enables them to do so.
And we become the voice that understands this desire to…

DO IT FOR THE
PLOT

BRAND PERSONALITY

We have a HEART like Bunny

A sense of HUMOUR like Kabir

And understand PAISA like Nikhil Kamath

Do’s & Don’ts

WE WON’T SAY:

Plan your expense wisely.

WE WILL SAY:

Rent first. Concert second. Regret never.

WE WON’T SAY:

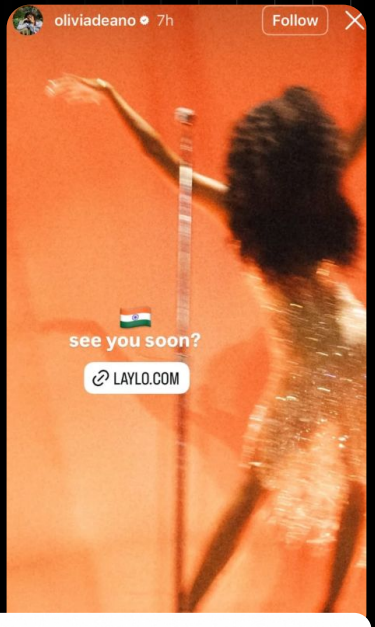

₹8,000 for a concert?

WE WILL SAY:

₹8,000 for a memory you’ll talk about for years? Fair.

kotak811 2h
HAPPILY BROKE AGAIN 😉
Reply
2,847

kotak811 1h
MAN, I NEED 😳
Reply
1,962

kotak811 3h

Reply
3,416

kotak811 3h
kharche justify karne ki ninja technique
Reply
3,416

BUCKETS

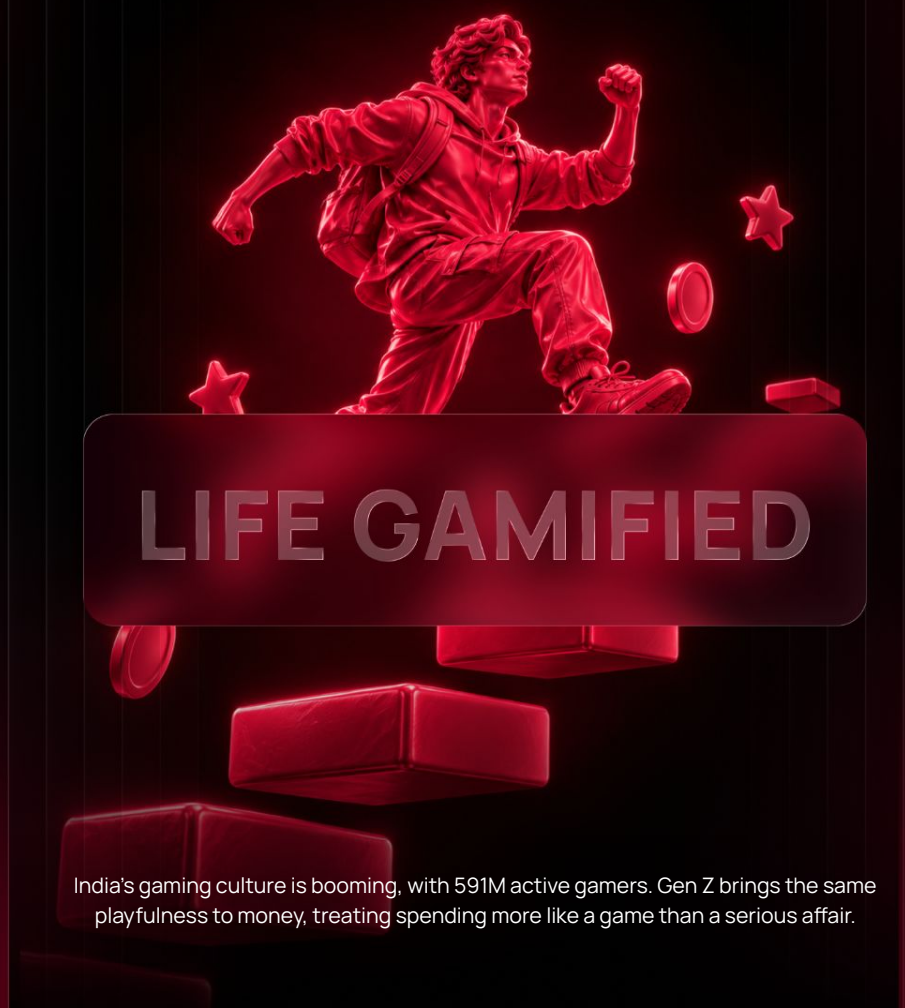

Self Care

Bucket list

Keep It Real

Life Gamified

Tech

India's gaming culture is booming, with 591M active gamers. Gen Z brings the same playfulness to money, treating spending more like a game than a serious affair.

BAU Content

LIFE GAMIFIED

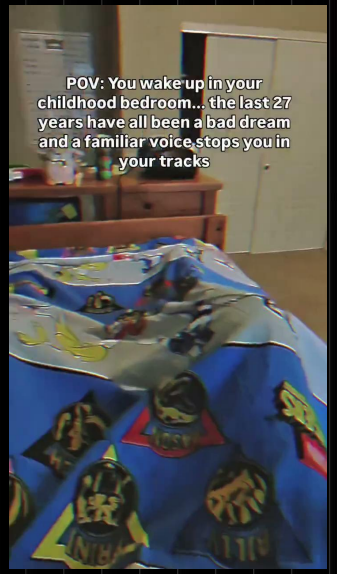

Insight: The Indian gaming market is one of the biggest in the world with 591 million active players. Gaming aesthetics have proliferated everywhere.

Concept: Gaming oriented first person pov reels with a UI that makes life look like a game visual. The UI can show us earnings and spendings through a money bar or counter but also shows emotions that increase or decrease every time you spend money. These are meant to be simple admin reels with quick turnaround times.

Gaming becomes the grammar through which we describe adulthood.

India Gaming Market 2026: 591M Players, $1.5B

JULY 23, 2026 BY TOM SIMPSON

LIFE GAMIFIED

Reel 1:

We show a first person PoV of a person enjoying at a cafe with their friends. They pay the bill with the Kotak 811 credit card . The friends cheer for the person.

Creative Copy: - Rs 2000 + 250 Happiness

Reel 2:

A GTA style reel showing Lakshita at Juhu Beach eating street food. Her mission is to not spend money. As Lakshita walks by she ignores the Pav bhaji stall, dosa stall, and as she does so, we see supers that say “+10 Self Control”. Everything is fine till she hits the pani puri stall and suddenly spends money.

Reel 3:

A Street Fighter/Mortal Kombat style reel where two players fight each other but they represent “Rent” and “Salary”. The Salary character uses the 7% returns as an attack and defeats Rent. Since the Street Fighter movie is coming out on Oct 16th with Vidyut Jammwal, we can do it in collab with him at the peak of the release week.

OOH

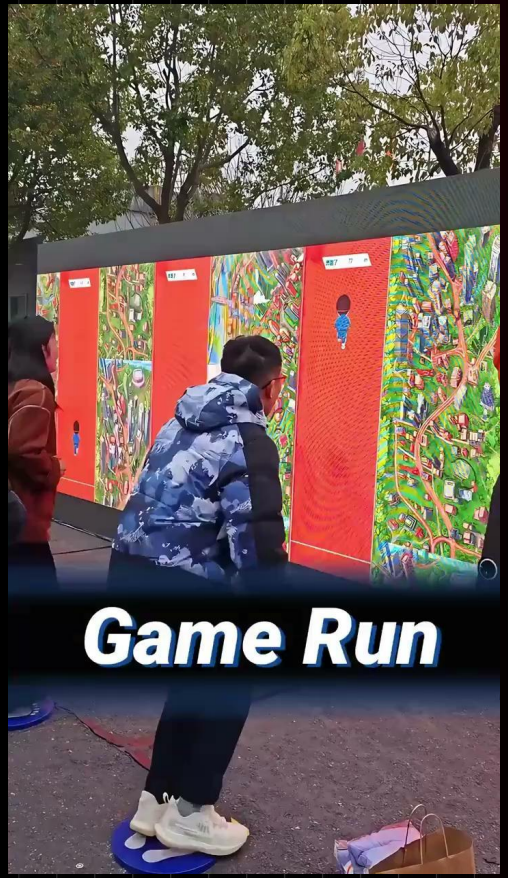

LIFE GAMIFIED

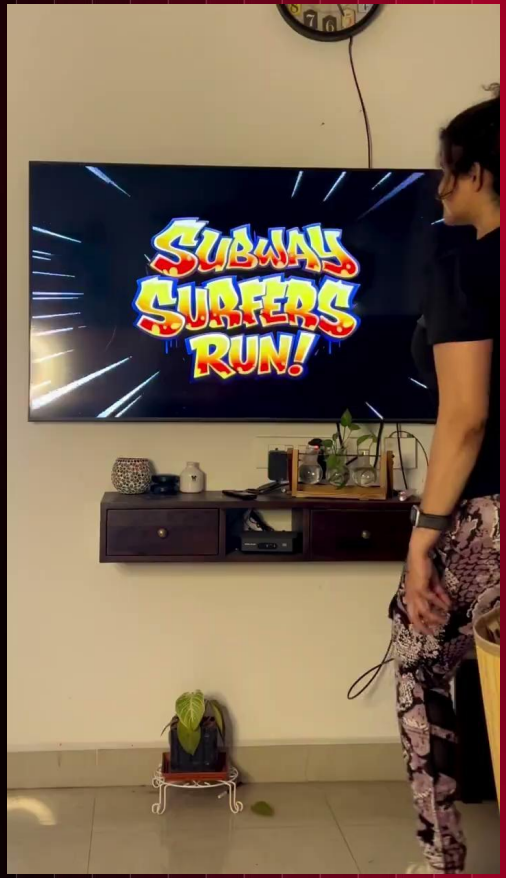

ACTIVATION:

Idea: People love collecting reward points, so we turn that obsession into a fun, interactive experience. Across different locations, we set up a series of quick, playful challenges, from running and dancing to catching hoops and more.

The more challenges participants complete, the more reward points they collect, making every move a chance to earn and turning everyday activity into a game.

The more you play, the more you earn.

Reality shows are booming with Gen Z, driven by their voyeuristic appeal.
We tap into this with our own nook of reality-based content.

Social IPs

KEEP IT REAL

VASOOLMAXXING

A dating show where two people are given each other's last 5 UPI transactions and based on that, they ask questions, have a convo and declare if they would go on a second date or not.

FINANCIAL RED FLAGS

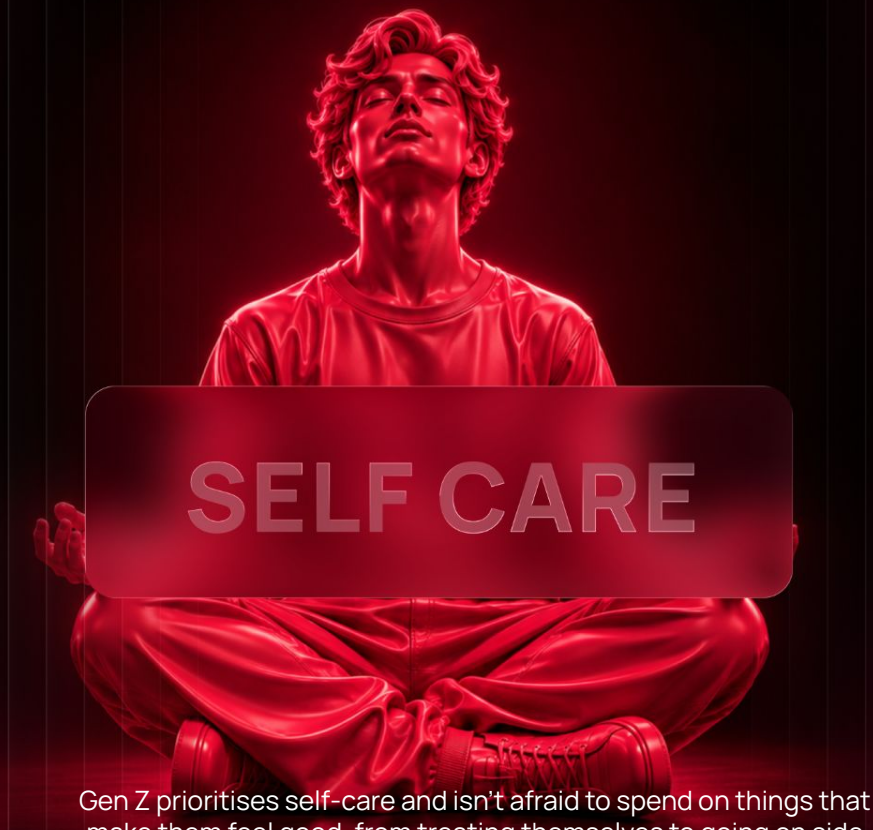

Vox pop series like Subway Takes where we ask people "what's your financial red flag". We only do this with micro and macro influencers whom we may have some kind of upcoming shoot with.

BROKE CODE

A reality TV microdrama where a host aims to fix financial habits of 3 shopaholic Gen Zs in order to get them closer to their own financial goals and inculcate saving habits.

Host Option: Tanmay Bhatt

Gen Z prioritises self-care and isn't afraid to spend on things that make them feel good, from treating themselves to going on side quests. This bucket taps into that behaviour.

SELF CARE

TREAT YOURSELF

Insight

Payday feels like permission to indulge. After weeks of holding back, having money to spare makes you want to spend on things that make an ordinary day feel special.

SELF CARE - TREAT YOURSELF

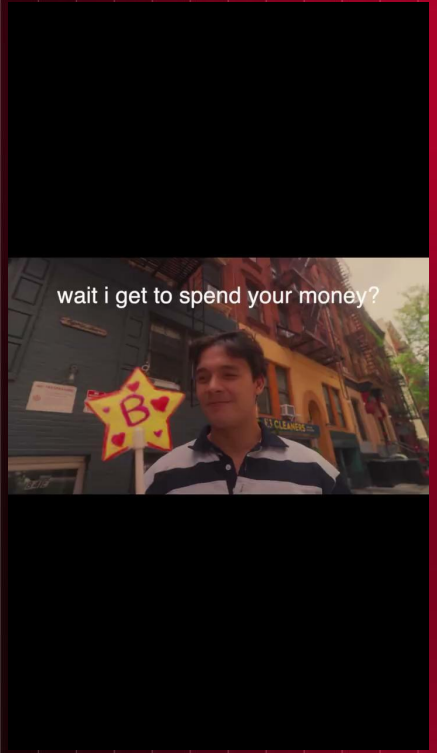

PAYDAY = TREAT DAY

A playful celebration of all the little ways we choose to treat ourselves when payday rolls around.

We start with a woman in her 20s, going about her day when a ping on her phone suddenly changes her entire mood: her salary has been credited. At this moment, she pulls out her Treat Wand, slips her Kotak card into it and heads out to treat herself. Every time she taps the wand, whatever she's craving magically appears: breakfast, a cab instead of an auto, Benne dosa, fresh nails. As the treats keep coming, the music and visuals get increasingly joyful and ridiculous. Even when she's tired and stuck in the Benne queue, wand in hand, she's determined to treat herself.

Note: The idea can work as a standalone film or become a recurring creator series, with creators getting a Treat Wand on their birthdays to spend the day treating themselves.

BAU Content

SELF CARE - TREAT YOURSELF

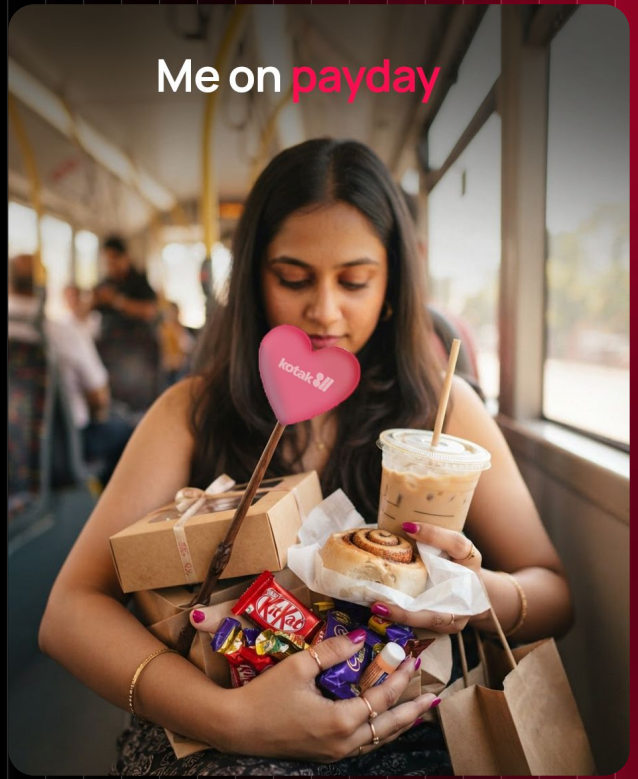

GIRL GRIP

Insight

Women's clothes famously don't come with enough pockets. So somehow, our hands have become the storage space for everything we're carrying: coffee, lip balm, snacks, keys, and whatever else we picked up along the way.

We turn this very girl grip moment into a Payday = Treat Day visual.

Note: The visual can become a recurring BAU format, with the hand changing based on different payday personalities and their favourite little treats.

OOH

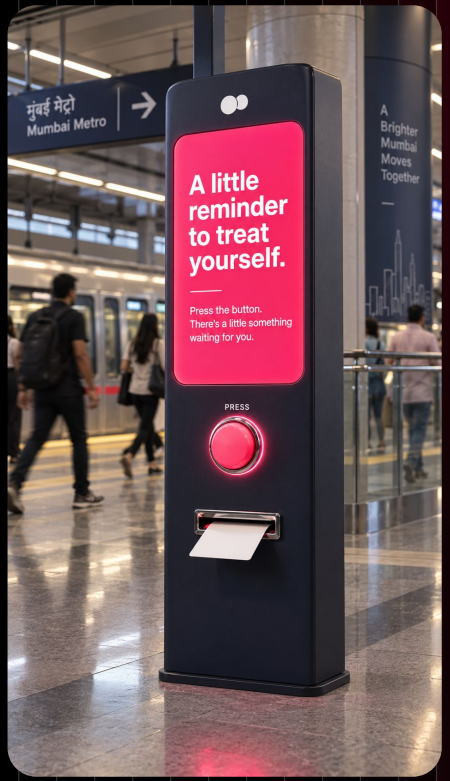

SELF CARE - TREAT YOURSELF

ACTIVATION

Idea: Since Kotak has a presence at the BKC station on the Aqua Line, we can create a mini interactive installation that encourages commuters to pause and treat themselves.

People can press a button to receive a small “Treat Yourself” note with a relatable situation and a simple indulgence suggestion.

Note: We could bring this live on World Kindness Day, building on Kotak811’s Kindness Is Contagious property, by encouraging people to be kind to themselves.

SELF CARE

SIDE QUEST

Insight: Spending adult money on things you want, not just things you need, gives young people a unique sense of satisfaction.

Concept: Life isn't just about work, responsibilities and the big milestones. Spends don't always have to be practical, some things are worth it simply because they make life more interesting. These are called side quests.

BAU Content

SELF CARE - SIDE QUEST

KARATE KID

PLOT

Kids are practising Karate, and Rohan is the odd one out: a 25-year-old who restarted Karate years after quitting in 7th grade. Now, he's determined to go from Green Belt to Black Belt, despite a younger teacher, kids using him as a punching bag, and absolutely no parental cheering section.

When it's time to pay for the next belt test, all the kids have their parents or grandparents to pay. Rohan pays with his Active Money gains. Somewhere, his 7th-grade self is proud. He then gets back to practice, only for the kid holding his roof tile to give up and leave.

BAU Content

SELF CARE - SIDE QUEST

CAR COLLECTION

Plot

A young couple on a date gets talking about the things they're passionate about. The guy casually starts talking about his growing vintage car collection: Fiat Padmini, Mercedes 350 SL, Volkswagen Beetle, and even an Ambassador. Impressed, the girl wonders how someone his age can afford such a collection and assumes it must be daddy's money. He tells her he's actually saving up for his next purchase, an Eldorado, and pays for his collection himself through UPI. When she asks to see it, he shows her his miniature car collection. He then orders a miniature vintage car and pays using his Kotak 811 scanner. She ends up joining him on his very own side quest.

A seasonal content bucket activated 3–4 times a year around major festival sales, turning tech upgrades into Gen Z cultural moments while tapping into the excitement of festive shopping.

FILM

TECH

BLACK FRIDAY BEHAVIOUR

Talents- Anurag and Aaliyah Kashyap

INSIGHT

Anurag and Aaliyah bring two generations and audiences together, Anurag, the minimalist millennial creative, and Aaliyah, the tech-first Gen Z creator. Black Friday, one of the biggest tech sale moments, also ties perfectly to Anurag's beloved film Black Friday, making the moment feel even more natural and fun.

CONCEPT

In an The Office-style mockumentary, Anurag and Aaliyah debate their opposite tech habits, Anurag champions minimalism while Aaliyah embraces tech and Black Friday upgrades. Anurag says "I love minimalism .. just like my film black.." cut to Aaliyah saying "black friday sale is my favourite"... But when Anurag's own huge package of laptops, lights and a new phone arrives, his hypocrisy is exposed. He pays with his Kotak 811 card quietly. Aaliyah gives him a look.

FILM

TECH

TECH THAT BRINGS US HOME

Talents- Namit Shah (Kabir), Shruti Seth (Mom), Siddharth thakkar (karan), Damandeep singh (Maan Singh)

INSIGHT

The kids who grew up watching Karan & Kabir have grown up too. They're earning, buying their own things and living away from home , Diwali becomes a chance to bring back that nostalgia while gifting something new.

CONCEPT

Karan and Kabir enter the hotel, where Maan Singh spots them and immediately starts to panic about them causing chaos again. Karan tells him to chill, and Mom joins them, asking why they're there. Kabir reassures her, "Chill Mom, aaj hum idhar guests ki tarah aaye hain." We then see a nostalgic montage of the three chilling around the hotel—until, by the pool, Karan and Kabir are back to fighting over a laptop like old times.

In the chaos, the laptop falls into the pool and Mom loses it. Maan Singh then surprises her with a brand-new laptop. She's shocked, while Karan and Kabir exchange a knowing look. We subtly see the Kotak 811 card in Karan's pocket as he shifts it away, revealing that the brothers had actually bought the laptop for their mom as a Diwali gift during the tech sale. Maan Singh smiles and wishes her Happy Diwali, as Karan and Kabir smile, happy to relive their childhood chaos while doing something special for their mom.

TECH

UNBOX THEIR FUTURE

Insight

With Alakh Pandey being one of the most recognisable faces among Indian students, his strong student connect and massive social following make him the perfect face for a back-to-school moment. As schools and coachings reopen after summer, we tap into his familiar teacher persona to turn the tech sale into a timely, student-first story.

Concept

In one continuous, Birdman-style shot, we follow Alakh Sir through the chaos of schools and coachings reopening after the summer break. He moves from room to room, checking that everything is ready, while his assistants handle the back-to-school rush. Then comes the crisis: “Sir, 2 laptop kam hai.” Without missing a beat, Alakh Sir says, “Mere bachon ko pareshaan nahi karega koi…” and immediately orders two more laptops using his Kotak 811 Card. We follow him straight into the classroom, where he gifts the new tech to students, making sure everyone is ready for the new academic year.

Back to school. Back to learning. Back to tech.

AI LED IDEAS

BAU Content

AI LED IDEAS

F(AI)NANCIAL INVENTIONS

Insight: We already have a running commentary on our money habits in our heads: guilt after an impulse buy, excitement when we save, and the eternal “worth it” debate. What if AI could turn these everyday money behaviours into something tangible, visual and shareable?

Concept Note: A series of playful AI products that bring everyday money behaviours to life. Instead of simply telling people how to manage their money, each tool makes their financial choices visible, interactive and entertaining, turning saving, spending and budgeting into something they can actually play with.

BAU Content

AI LED IDEAS

AI PRODUCTS

- The Financial Conscience Hat —a slapstick invention that literally hits you every time you cross your spending limit for the day.
- The Money Pet — gets happier when you save and starts crying when you impulse-buy.
- The Memory Machine — every time you spend on an experience, it turns the transaction into a tiny memory.
- The Plot Generator — enter your budget and it generates increasingly chaotic side quests.
- The Money GPS — instead of telling you where to go, it tells your money where it should go.

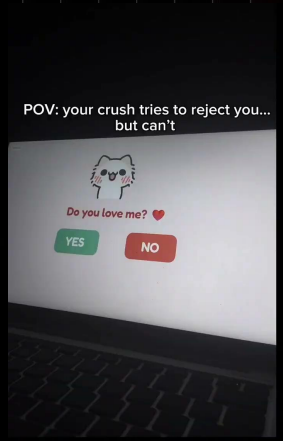

AI LED IDEAS

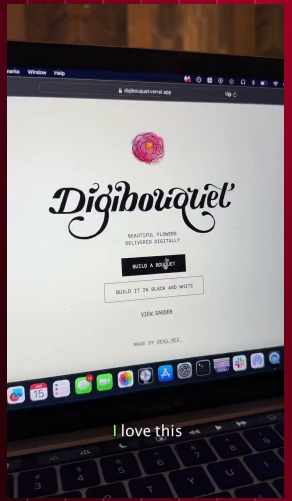

AI PRODUCTS

Extension:

This idea can be extended beyond AI-generated content by tapping into the growing trend of people using AI to build websites, products and experiences. Some of the quirky AI-generated products or objects we create can then be brought to life as real, physical objects, created by influencers or creators. They can take inspiration from the AI concepts and build their own real-world versions, blurring the line between the AI world and reality.

BAU Content

AI LED IDEAS

LIFE DOESN'T WAIT

Insight: Gen Z doesn't want their lives to revolve around managing money. They want money to keep up with their lives.

Idea: Using AI, we create surreal, chaotic scenarios where people handle their banking mid-adventure, showing that with Kotak811, money never interrupts the moment.

Sample example:

Skydiving: Getting a loan approval notification mid-air and casually swiping it away to continue the dive.

Bungee Jump: Checking a cashback notification seconds before jumping off the platform.

Scuba Diving: Receiving a credit card approval notification while underwater and giving a thumbs-up before swimming away.

BUCKET LIST

Gen Z travel spending is rising year-over-year, because seeing the world is one thing they're not willing to miss out on.

This bucket explores that spending behaviour.

BAU Content

BUCKET LIST

JUST INDIAN THINGS

Insight: Every country has its own travel quirks. But Indian travellers have a very specific set of habits that somehow follow them across borders.

Concept: This recurring sketch-based series celebrates these very Indian travel behaviours through exaggerated, relatable situations. Each episode takes one familiar quirk and pushes it to a hilariously extreme level which highlights that no matter how far Indians travel, some things never leave them.

BAU Content

BUCKET LIST

JUST INDIAN THINGS

A family abroad is on a serious mission to find an Indian restaurant. Dad scans the streets with binoculars, Mom inspects signboards, and the kids peer into every restaurant they pass. When a younger family member asks what they're looking for, everyone replies, "Indian restaurant!" He wonders why they travelled abroad just to eat ghar ka khana.

Suddenly, Dad spots one and screams, "Mil gaya!" The family rushes over, celebrating like they've found home. Mom gets emotional, Dad hugs the kids, and a patriotic song plays. Overcome with joy, Dad throws his Kotak card in slow motion, recreating the famous "Take all my money" meme.

Creator: Taneesho & family

BAU Content Piece

BUCKET LIST

TRAVEL MATH

Insight: When we travel, we become extremely conscious of how we spend on getting there, but surprisingly generous once we reach.

Concept: We turn this contradiction into a series of snappy, location-specific reels.

Each reel follows a traveller obsessively looking for discounts on their flight and stay, applying coupon after coupon and saving wherever they can. But the moment they reach their destination, that frugality disappears and they start spending generously on experiences.

Examples:
Bir Biling - Paragliding
Goa - Private Yacht
Rishikesh - River Rafting
Andaman/Lakshadweep - Scuba Diving/Snorkelling
Jaisalmer - Desert Safari

BUCKET LIST

CARDMAXXING

Idea:

Taking inspiration from this reference, we will showcase the lifestyle and experiences that Kotak 811's cards can help unlock.

TOPICAL

SHAADI SEASON

Insight

Gen Z is moving away from spending on wedding scale and spectacle, and towards spending on things that actually matter to them.

Wedding Spending Trends: More Indians Want Financial Stability, Traditional, Self-Funded Marriage, Says Survey

About 70 per cent of over 2100 millennials and Gen Z respondents said they want traditional self-funded weddings, a key trend observed in the study.

Creator Collab

SHAADI SEASON

Aatman Desai recently announced his engagement, making him a timely and relatable face for this idea. We could collaborate with him to bring the wedding-season content to life, adding a personal, social-first charm to the campaign.

FILM

SHAADI SEASON

Concept

Why spend on a bigger wedding when you can spend the savings on a better life together? Young couples are cutting the unnecessary wedding expenses and putting that money towards experiences they actually value.

Plot

Post-wedding, the entire family sits down for the final wedding expense calculation, from their 811 transaction history. What follows is peak Indian family chaos.It's a chaotic post-wedding blame game, with the bride defending her choice of an intimate wedding against a family that wanted to go bigger.Dad takes credit for saving money through his "negotiations." Mom counters with the expenses he unnecessarily approved. The brother mourns his joote churai losses. Everyone has their own version of where the money went.

Finally, the bride takes charge and reveals the actual savings, line by line.
"Shaadi mein itna save hua. Aur itne mein humara Maldives ho gaya."

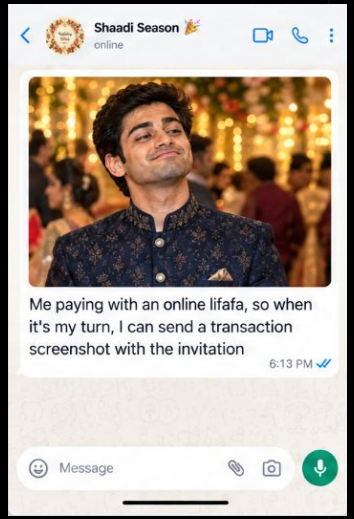

Everyone goes silent & leaves with "Humein nahi khelna."

BAU Content

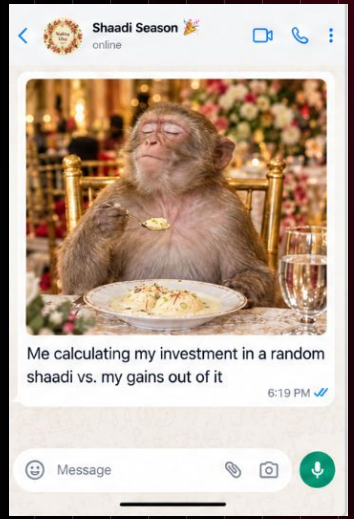

SHAADI SEASON

Carousel

FILM

KHARIDITIS

Insight
Discounts can make people buy things they never actually needed.

Concept:
During the festive season, Khariditis becomes an epidemic. One attractive offer is enough to trigger the urge to buy, leading to unnecessary spending. The only cure? Pause before you purchase.
Ask yourself: do I need it, or did the discount make me want it?

Talent: Vir Saini

Plot:
We open in a hospital overrun with patients suffering from Khariditis. Their symptoms are extreme: uncontrollable buying triggered by discounts, from a dinosaur-shaped car to a dining table with no legs, and other ridiculously unnecessary products.

Doctors try to contain the epidemic, while some patients desperately fight the urge every time a SALE notification pops up. Some manage to resist. Others are already checking out.

Amidst the chaos, Kotak steps in as the awareness body, helping people identify the difference between a purchase driven by Khariditis and one that is actually worth it for the plot.

Extension I Creator Collab

KHARIDITIS

Creator: Govind Menon

We send a comedian the amount spent, followed by the actual product, and let him sarcastically roast the purchase. He then puts each shopper through the Kharidaitis test to see if it was a need or just the discount talking.

LINKEDIN

MAKING 811 HUMAN

LinkedIn shouldn't just show what Kotak811 does. It should show the people who make it happen.

Put 811ers at the heart of LinkedIn, show their work, wins, personalities, lifestyles and the culture they create.

Alongside this, make money knowledge easier to understand and harder to ignore, using the expertise within 811 to tackle the financial things people often overlook.

Humanise the employees.
Celebrate their brilliance.
Showcase the culture.
Share what they know.

Because the best way to show what makes Kotak811 different is to show the people who make it different.

LINKEDIN BUCKETS

Your friendly finance folks

Who are you beyond your job

Built at 811

Quotak by 811

LINKEDIN

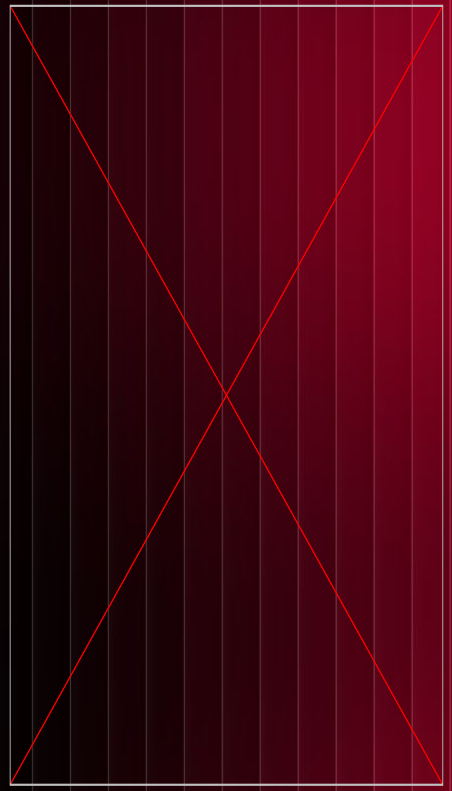

YOUR FRIENDLY FINANCE FOLKS

Insight

People trust brands more when they see the humans behind them. While Kotak811 helps people manage their finances, the people behind Kotak811 are also navigating their own money journeys, making financial knowledge more relatable and credible.

Concept Note

A recurring employee-led video series that showcases the people behind Kotak811. Employees share their personal finance habits, money hacks, how they use Kotak811, and lessons from their own financial journeys. The series positions employees as approachable finance experts while giving audiences practical knowledge they can apply in real life.

Reference:

LINKEDIN

FINANCIAL RED FLAGS

Insight

Everyone has opinions on what counts as a financial red flag. Watching employees react to everyday money habits makes financial conversations feel more relatable, authentic, and fun.

Concept Note

A recurring vox pop-style series where employees are handed a green flag and a red flag. They're presented with everyday money situations, like splurging on every sale, investing before buying the latest gadget, tracking monthly expenses, or keeping all their savings in a regular savings account, and have to instantly decide whether it's a financial green flag or red flag by raising the corresponding flag. Quick, opinionated, and interactive, the series humanises employees while encouraging conversations around smarter financial habits.

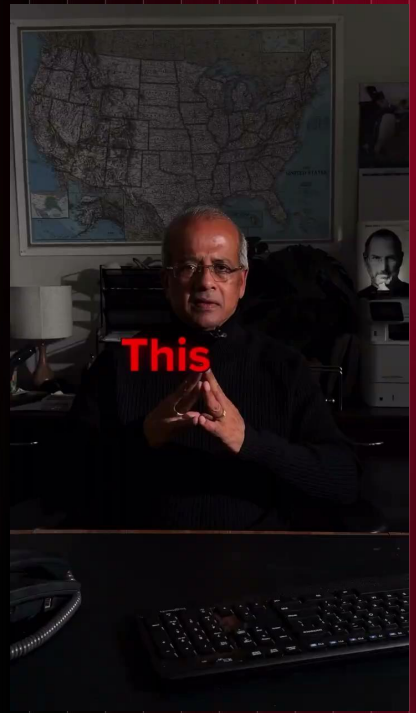

LINKEDIN

WHO YOU ARE BEYOND YOUR JOB

Insight: Bank employees are often seen as serious and numbers-driven, but there's much more to them beyond their job titles.

Concept:
A content series that showcases Kotak811 employees beyond work through P2C stories around their hobbies and personalities. We end each story by gifting them a small, personalised memento, anime stickers for an anime fan, paints and sketchbooks for an artist, and more.

LINKEDIN

BUILT AT 811

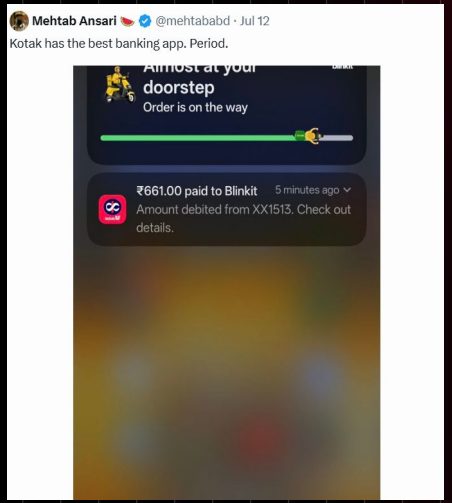

Insight: Kotak811 employees work on products and innovations that impact millions of people. But while users experience the final outcome, a seamless app, a new feature or an improved banking experience, they rarely get to see what it took to build it.

Concept: The idea is not just to say, "Look at what we built."

It is to show:

Here was the problem.
Here's how we thought about it.
Here's what we changed.
And here's what millions of users experience because of it.

Each carousel follows a simple Problem → Process → People → Product → Impact structure.

LINKEDIN

QUOTAK BY 811

Insight: Financial advice can often feel serious and preachy, even when it's about things we all obviously know. There's an opportunity to make these everyday money truths more relatable through humour.

Idea: A series of posts where Kotak leadership shares hilariously obvious money lessons, delivered with the seriousness of a profound leadership insight. From spending beyond your means to having 14 unnecessary subscriptions, each post takes a painfully familiar financial truth and gives it the "wise words from leadership" treatment. The result is financial advice that is useful, relatable and funny enough to stop the LinkedIn scroll.

Examples:

- If you spend ₹5,000 more than you have, you have ₹5,000 less than you had.
- A sale is not a saving if you bought something you didn't need.

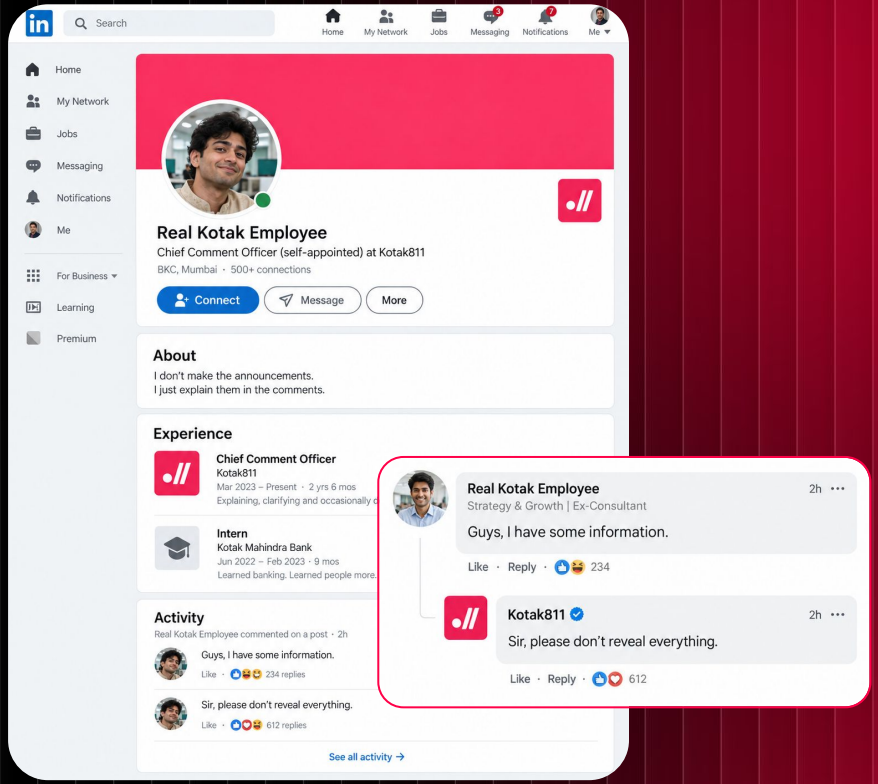

LINKEDIN

REAL KOTAK EMPLOYEE

The Insight: Corporate LinkedIn is polished and professional, but real workplaces are anything but.

Every office has "the person in the comments" the one with the gossip, one-liners and an opinion on everything.

The Idea: We create a fictional "Real Kotak Employee" persona on LinkedIn who becomes the unofficial commentator on Kotak811, dropping inside jokes, banter and unsolicited opinions across brand and employee posts.
The fun lies in the dynamic between the persona and the Kotak811 page, which treats this "employee" like an absolute VIP.

X(TWITTER)

BACKGROUND

X is where people come to say the thought as it comes: random observations, unfiltered opinions, banter and conversations that feel more like a friend's group chat than branded content.

Unhinged opinions work.
The more unexpected the thought, the more it gives people something to react to.

APPROACH

811 Talks Like Its Biggest Fan

On X, 811 stops talking like a bank and starts talking about all things money, The kind of fan who, has an opinion on everything, randomly drops brain farts, jumps into conversations and is always ready with a killer comeback.
Basically, if the internet is talking money,
811 has something to say.

Not "Dear Customer." More "Bro, I saw that too."

X BUCKETS

Money matters

Adult money

FUNance

MONEY MATTERS

Concept

Unfiltered money thoughts, brain farts and observations, basically the financial version of that friend who types every thought in the group chat.

Sample Tweets:

Yeh month-end internet issue, payments bas happen hi nahi hote.

Wdym UPI ka fullform Uff, Paisa lsgone nahi hai?

hey pasandida aurat, can you? I mean pleasssssss 👉👈
‹image of some PS/ expensive toy›

ADULT MONEY

Concept:
A repository of everything the admin has bought with his hard-earned, very-adult money: Random, unhinged buys with subtle Kotak811 integration woven in.

Hook and Copy: Things I bought with my adult money ,
The first one could KILL you if you ate it.

ADULT MONEY

Sample Thread:
1/
if you take a bite from this apple, you'll die.
2/
Okay that was a lil dramatic before you call me stupid, hear me out.
3/this is a [ridiculously expensive / bizarre thing] and yes, I absolutely did not need it.
but that's not the point.
4/
The point is that IT IS SO CUTE! LOOK AT THAT GORGEOUS COLOUR
5/
finance bros call it discretionary spending.
I call it doing it for the plot.
6/
could I have saved this money?
Yes.
did I?
NO
7/

FUNance

Concept

Finance, but explained through the weirdest analogies, cultural references and dad jokes imaginable.

Sample Tweets:

Your credit card balance is like that situationship who ghosts you all month and suddenly has a LOT to say on the 1st.

Credit score: your financial report card, except there's no parent-teacher meeting. Yet.

UPI: Money travelling faster than your 'on my way' text.

Payday: the shortest relationship you'll ever have.

Autopay: the relationship you forgot you were still in.

LET’S DO IT FOR THE PLOT